Joy House staged an incredible comeback, rising from last place last year to an impressive 2nd position, truly tremendous progress. Their hard work, resilience, and renewed team spirit were evident in every activity, making their journey one of the standout highlights of the day.

Redemption House powered through with determination and secured 3rd place, an impressive effort that truly showed their grit and team spirit.

Heaven House gave it their all and finished in 4th place, showing great courage and enthusiasm throughout. It was clear they had a unique advantage, with many of the youngest participants on their team, but they embraced the challenge with heart and determination, making their presence truly felt on the field.

Our sincere gratitude goes to our parents who stepped forward and played a vital role in ensuring that the results were handled with fairness, integrity, and transparency. Their commitment truly made a meaningful difference.

WORLD BOOK DAY

World Book Day, celebrated on the first Thursday of March, is always a joyful highlight in our school calendar, a day when stories truly come to life. This year, our children arrived dressed as their favorite storybook characters, filling the school with color, creativity, and excitement. It was wonderful to see their enthusiasm and the effort put into bringing these characters to life.

However, as the day unfolded, it became evident that while many children looked the part, some found it difficult to talk about the characters they represented. They struggled to share the stories or describe who they were, highlighting an important opportunity for growth.

This reminds us that World Book Day is not just about costumes, but about building a deeper love for reading. It presents a valuable chance for parents to engage more with their children through storybooks, reading together, discussing characters, and encouraging them to express what they have learned.

With continued support both at school and at home, we can help our children move beyond dressing up to truly understanding and enjoying the stories they read, nurturing confident readers and imaginative thinkers.

SOME OF THE WAYS WE LEARN IN OUR PRESCHOOL

Beyond memory, music creates an emotional connection to learning. Children naturally respond to sound, movement, and rhythm. When lessons are paired with songs or simple instruments, learning becomes playful rather than pressured. A child who may struggle to sit through a quiet reading session might fully engage when that same story is sung or acted out with musical elements. In this way, music lowers barriers and invites participation.

As children explore colors, textures, and shapes, they are not only developing control and coordination but also expressing their ideas and emotions freely. This makes learning feel natural and enjoyable. In this process, the focus is not on perfection but on creativity and discovery, allowing children to grow in confidence while their little fingers gain strength and precision.

By regularly changing the toys on display, the environment feels fresh and inviting, sparking renewed excitement and exploration. Children engage more deeply, use their imagination, and discover new ways to play. In this relaxed setting, learning unfolds organically, with each child expressing creativity and building skills at their own pace.

Water play is often every child's favorite activity, and for good reason. It's fun, sensory-rich, and endlessly engaging. Splashing, pouring, and experimenting with water allows children to explore cause and effect, develop hand-eye coordination, and strengthen fine motor skills, all while staying fully absorbed in play.

PRIMARY SECTION TERM 2 HIGHLIGHT

Dear parents,

It has been an incredibly vibrant term. Our classrooms have been a constant buzz of energy and discovery, with the students diving into a colorful array of activities that have kept us all on our toes. From the quiet focus of our classroom learning to the excitement of our outdoor physical activities, the children have shown wonderful growth including:

- Discovery: The students took on the role of young investigators during our research projects. It was inspiring to see them use their curiosity to explore new topics and share their findings with their peers.
- Active Bodies, Active Minds: We made the most of the fresh air with various outdoor challenges. Whether it was team games or skill-building exercises, the students brought great enthusiasm and sportsmanship to every session.
- Creative Growth: Between our core subjects, we have filled our days with hands-on projects that allowed everyone's unique personality to shine through.

It has been a joy to watch the students transition into more confident, independent learners this term. Thank you all for your continued support in making our school community such a lively place to learn. We hope and pray that you enjoy a restful holiday and come back next term, geared up for more learning and discovery.

Best Regards,

Ms. Deborah
